Introduction to Mental Health Awareness Week 2021

The theme is Connect with Nature.

Introduction to 'Connect with Nature'

Connecting with nature is about building a relationship with nature by noticing and becoming sensitive to the environment around us.

This has benefits for our physical and mental health.

What is mental health?

Mental health is made up of our thoughts, feelings, mood and behaviour.

We all have mental health, just like we all have physical health.

Our mental health can change depending on our experiences and circumstances throughout our lives.

Why is connecting with nature good for our mental health?

Feeling happier

Feeling less stressed or angry

Having more and better- quality sleep

Feeling less worried

Being more environmentally aware and engaged

Increasing self-esteem and self-confidence

Improving attention and concentration

Encouraging participation in physical activities

Increasing social contact with other people and animals

30 Days Wild Challenge

Every June the Wildlife Trusts runs a 30 Days Wild Challenge – completing one Random Act of Wildness every day.

How can we connect with nature?

Finding your own space in nature: Bring nature in

Eat breakfast in front of the window, observing the nature outside.

Grow vegetables from your windowsill

Open a window and listen to the different sounds.

Watch a wildlife programme.

How can we connect with nature?

*Do you know of places you go?
Can you share with your form?
Maybe arrange a socially distanced
walk or picnic?*

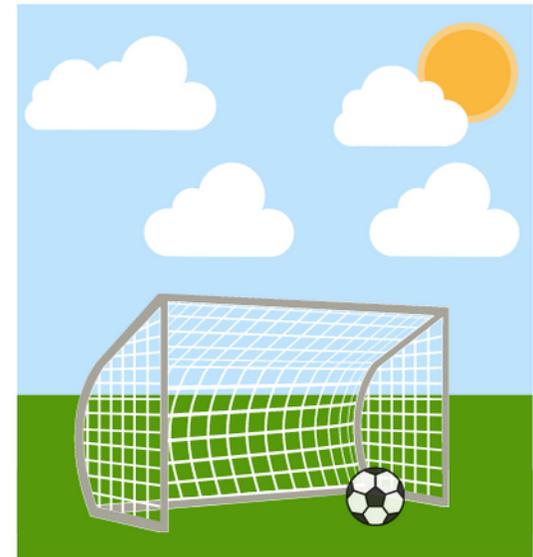

How can we connect with nature?

Go for a walk,
run or cycle

Stretch or practise yoga
outside

Play football with your friends

How can we connect with nature?

Finding your own space in nature: Take a moment to be mindful

Mindfulness is the skill of paying attention to what is happening in your mind and body right now, without judgement. You could take a mindful moment as you:

Walk in your local natural space

Water indoor or outdoor plants

Draw or paint the view from your window

How can we connect with nature?

Finding your own space in nature: Take a moment to learn what nature can do, how amazing it is.

Mindfulness is the skill of paying attention to what is happening in your mind and body right now, without judgement. You could take a mindful moment as you:

Finding your own space in nature: Get creative

Creative activities you could try:

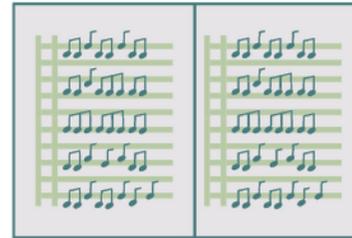

Take photographs of landscapes and natural objects

Write some creative sentences

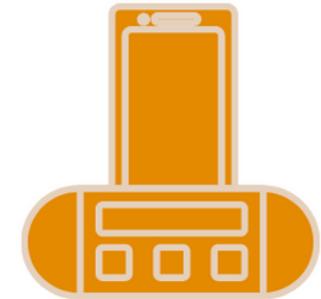

Do a quick sketch of a natural object

Write a poem or song lyrics

Collect natural objects and make a handmade card for a loved one

Play music outside

Connecting with others: Outdoors

Play sports with friends

Go for a group walk

Visit local heritage spots

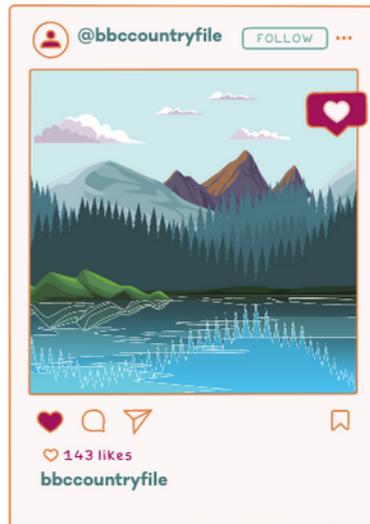

Have a picnic

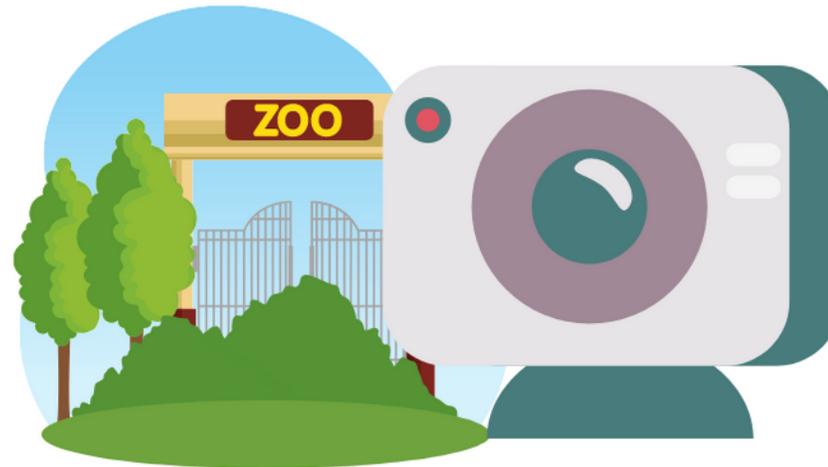

Do gardening with family

Connecting with others: From home

Follow a nature-focused Instagram account like @bbccountryfile

Visit Kew Gardens or watch live webcams from zoos across the UK, all from the comfort of your sofa!

Run a competition with your friends – who can grow the tallest sunflower or the most tomatoes?

How can we connect with nature?

Connecting with others: At school

Go on a nature walk in the local area

Organize a big litter clean-up of the school grounds or a local park

Sign up to the RSPB Big Schools' Birdwatch

What else can you do as a year group?

How can we connect with nature?

Being part of something bigger, taking action

Use reusable drink bottles

Recycle as much as possible

Turn off lights when you leave the room

Donate old clothes to charity or the clothing bank

Grow flowers on your windowsill that are good for bees

Pick up litter when you are out for a walk

Sign up and share a petition or campaign about protecting our environment

What impacts how we connect with nature?

There are many circumstances that can limit people's level of access and opportunities to connect with nature in a meaningful way. Some of these include:

Health conditions or disabilities

Limited or no access to green (garden, park, woods) or blue (river, sea, lake) spaces

The cost of taking part in different activities

Living in an urban location where the air is more polluted

Feeling unsafe in the local outdoor spaces

Listen to people's experiences, work together to come up with new ideas and campaign for changes, such as:

Improving lighting in public spaces such as parks

Developing wheelchair accessible paths in natural spaces

Encouraging the use of public transport to limit air pollution from vehicles

How can we 'connect with nature'?

1. This is Mo. Mo lives on the 10th floor of a block of flats in the middle of the city. Mo doesn't have a garden and there are no local parks that he can travel to by himself. Mo enjoys his photography class at school and likes to follow different photography accounts on social media.

2. This is Nara. Nara lives on the beachfront and loves the sea. She is really creative and enjoys art at school. She has a health condition that means her mobility is limited and she can't walk very far without her wheelchair.

3. This is Jamie. Jamie lives in a small village, close to a large park. He loves playing any sport and listening to music. At weekends, Jamie works at a local supermarket. It is often very quiet in the village when he finishes work and the park doesn't always feel safe after dusk.

4. This is Ciara. Ciara lives in the middle of a big city, close to a major motorway. There is no green space within walking distance of her house and her family doesn't have a car. The air often feels polluted and the noise of traffic is often really overwhelming when she is outside.

Top tips for connecting with nature

Here are some top tips for building your connection with nature:

-  Start small
-  Do things that work for you
-  Ask for company
-  You don't need to go far
-  Switch off your phone
-  Use all your senses
-  Slow down and pay attention
